STAR ROUTE TRIAL CONTINUED

WASHINGTON, February 21.—A reporter of the Associated Press interviewed Colonel Dorsey in reference to the statement made by the prosecution in the star route case, in the report of which it was stated that he gave the following, it is said, as his reason: Postmaster General Thomas L. Brady, ex-Senator Stephen W. Dorsey, John W. Dorsey, brother of the latter, W. H. Turner, formerly clerk of the Post office department, William L. Nimes, Henry Moore, J. L. Vanderslice and J. M. Pettigrew of the Dorsey firm. The last named (Pettigrew) is said to have died recently. It is understood the prosecution does not include French, Brady and S. P. Brown, who were not included in the original information. Bliss stated the grand jury was unanimous in finding on the matter. Of course they had some doubt in regard to certain cases, but none where they felt a reasonable doubt existed. The indictments for conspiracy, the counts of the grand jury in relation to the administration of justice in the District of Columbia, were sustained, as vindication of the administration of President Arthur who has instructed the district attorney to have full swift justice done, and signed by prominent individuals who had been in the employ of the government, in connection with the star route contracts, if for 1 [illegible] and 1 [illegible] or more years, or for 1 [illegible] and 1 [illegible] or more years, or for 1 [illegible] and 1 [illegible] or more years, or

The Republican yesterday published another interview by "Moss Agate" with Judge Belford on the mid land bill. He don't intend to press it for the present.

There are only 6,139,000 Jews in the whole world. They certainly show their wonderful power as a race in averling everywhere so much influence though so widely and thinly scattered.

"Moss Agate," in the Denver Republican Washington correspondence, has the following: "General Stimson has accepted the situation and starts for home to-morrow. He threw the responsibility of the situation on Senator Teller's shoulders. Teller tells him that the president has a man in view for the New Mexico surveyor generalship. At the same time the senator is urging a Mr. Nichols, of Del Norte, for the place. Regarding the Ute bills and other matters, will write to-morrow."

The legislature of the territory of New Mexico has passed a law fixing passenger rates at four cents a mile. In other words it says that railroads shall not be built unless they can afford to carry passengers for four cents a mile. This is exceedingly unwise for there are districts in New Mexico now dependent on the slow and tiresome stage coach that would like railroads but do not have travel enough to make four cents a mile pay. Certainly railroads will not be built for small money, and hence some districts would be without railroads longer than they would have to do with more liberal laws.

There is considerable inquiry as to the text of Senator Hill's bill opening up the Ute reservation. The secretary of the interior and the senate committee on public lands have recommended its passage. The following is the part which is most essential.

That and duly qualified persons who have in good faith settled on Ute allotments or locations under any law of the United States upon a strip of land extending northerly and southerly not exceeding ten miles in width within that part of the Ute Indian reservation, in the state of Colorado, lately occupied by the Uncompahgre and White River Ute Indians, and bounded on the east by the 10th degree of longitude west from Washington, are hereby authorized to continue in the possession of the land so entered, settled or located in the same manner and to the same extent as if the land were public lands of the United States, and upon the release of said lands from the reservation such entries, settlements or locations shall legally date from the time they were respectively made and the rights of such persons shall be in all respects the same as if the lands had been legally subject to their claim; and such claims were initiated, provided, however, that if the homestead entries have become commutation entries, the land so entered shall be paid for in cash, after proof, which would be satisfactory under the preemption law.

SEWERAGE CORRESPONDENCE

Elsewhere we print another letter from J. J. H. We should not like to publish many such, as they are not written in a way to contribute anything of value to the discussion, and beg the pardon of our readers for doing so. But as his first contribution was criticised, we will give him a chance to reply. The absurdity of his estimates in the first letter has already been exposed. The financial reference in this letter is even wilder. He speaks of a system of drainage costing $100,000 (though careful estimates place the cost at $60,000), and says this will increase our taxes from 3 to 5 per cent. If they should cost this, and the cost be put in bonds bearing 7 per cent interest, it would increase our taxes between three and four mills. What will probably be borrowed by the city (if the works are put in) will increase our taxes by about one mill, however. If the whole expense that will be borne by the city as a whole were assessed on the city and paid outright in one year, it would not probably increase the taxes as much as J. J. H. estimates. But, as we said yesterday, we do not think it worth while to speculate, except in a rough way, on this matter until some sanitary engineer of note has suggested to us some plan on which definite estimates can be made.

The letter does not treat the matter fairly or frankly, and hardly makes a point without misrepresentation of the advocates of a sewerage system. There is, and has been, no disposition to put in any system of sewerage without advising with the best authorities on the subject. It is not urged as a job or to increase the taxes. It is urged by men sincerely interested in the welfare of the city. Their position regarding the unhealthfulness of the city is indorsed by the medical profession and by all authorities on sanitary matters, which say that with our present system of drainage the city ought to be unhealthful. The other attempted sarcasms are not worthy of serious notice. The question of sewerage for this city is a serious one, which should admit common sense into play rather than doubtful sarcasm.

The quotation from the Chicago Trade Journal seems to serve no purpose in the article except a slur on "economical." The writer possibly would have better ideas if he were to read some of the sanitary papers or some of the articles by sanitary engineers instead of a paper which is an authority on the price of pork. The article does use the word cesspool, which, possibly, may be another reason for quoting it. But the cesspool mentioned evidently is not what we mean by cesspool, for the article understands that the water is to be immediately discharged from it, and the solid part mixed with earth and used as a fertilizer. This is not a cesspool system, but a "dry removal" which is highly commended by sanitary engineers where the "separate system" of sewerage is not practicable. The "dry removal" system will be a good one in this city, but it requires great care and conscientiousness in carrying it out.

The whole question of drainage is not so complex as it used to be. Twenty years ago the most fundamental principles of the approved sewerage of to-day—were unknown. The sanitary engineer and the board of health are very modern discoveries. While few of us are experts we may all understand the sanitary principles which underlie any good system of drainage, principles which have been understood through wide experience and observation. For the information of our readers we will give the following resolution adopted at a meeting of the New York State Board of Health, which may be considered a fair statement of the opinions of our best sanitary authorities.

Resolved by the state board of health

First—That the use of privy vaults, privies and cess pools is seriously affecting the public health.

Second—That all excreta should be removed from the neighborhood of human dwellings instead of being stored up near them in pits, vaults or pools to poison the water, earth and air.

Third—That in villages and cities this removal of excreta should be done by the local authorities who shall be responsible for its proper performance and in isolated localities by the individuals interested.

Fourth—That this removal of excreta may be cheaply and healthfully done either by "dry removal" or by water carriage.

Fifth—That we recommend the method of dry removal called the tub or pail system as the best for villages, hamlets, and isolated dwellings which are without water supply or have not the means to build sewers.

Sixth—That towns having proper water supply should be provided with a system of small sewers adapted to carry only sewage including excreta, slops and waste water and excluding storm water which should be taken care of separately.

Seventh—That the costly plan of large combined sewers for carrying sewage and storm water together have proved a sanitary failure both in England and in this country, while the separate system, when properly constructed and with care, is in a great measure the ideal sewer air now so common, and is much less expensive for most towns.

Eighth—That the "separate system of sewers" with flush tanks is hereby recommended for general use in this state.

We commend the above for the careful reading of J. J. H. and other defenders of the cesspool and opponents of the proposed "separate system" of sewerage.

PERSONAL

Engagements for June 8 at Washington Germans are sometimes made weeks in advance of the occasions.

General Longstreet's loss by the burning of his barn in Georgia is about $1,500 and he is far from being a rich man.

It is stated that Thomas Nast is about to retire from business with the Harpers, having made money enough to support himself in comfort.

Contributions toward the establishment of a Garfield professorship at Williams College have reached $12,000 and only $8,000 more is required.

Senator Pendleton and E. M. Washburne have been selected as the orators at the La Salle bicentennial celebration which will be held in New Orleans on April 9.

Clarence Burton the Washington editor who figured in the Sickles affair is a nephew of Burton Key whom General Sickles killed many years ago.

Mr. Evarts found it necessary to limit the number of persons at his entertainments and Mr. Frelinghuysen has been compelled to be still more rigorous.

Mrs. Governor Long of Massachusetts, is an invalid but has suffered but very little from the winter weather. She has two pretty daughters to make her home bright.

The president, on the evening when he gives a dinner, visits the parlors and dining room before the guests arrive, in order to ascertain whether the temperature is right.

California agriculturalists are adopting many plants from China and Japan. Great hopes are held for the soja bean as extensively used for food in eastern Asia.

For a long time photographs of Mrs. Langtry have been displayed in certain Broadway windows, and some of them are colored showing the peculiar blue of her eye and the beautiful brown of her hair. Very few men have been heard to express an opinion, but many ladies have asked why she should be considered a beautiful, and a few of them are so beautiful themselves that they could easily have afforded to be just and generous.

The Humorist of our Town Council

Must be enjoying himself hugely at the commotion he has created among our doctors and townspeople, by making them believe we are just upon the brink of pestilence of the direst kind—threatening the destruction of our town as a health resort—as destructive and deleterious in its effects upon the future of our place as was Sergeant O'Keefe's Pikes Peak volcano, all this owing to the little joke he perpetrated by his resolution relating to the vast importance of sewerage to our future welfare and prosperity.

The night preceding the introduction of this resolution in our town council, the great mass of our fellow townsmen fell into the arms of Morpheus upon their downy couches, thanking their stars that our town is not as other towns are, that its fame as a health resort is not confined to the narrow limits of the American continent, but extends throughout civilization—and the Chinese empire. People flock here to breathe its health inspiring atmosphere from the four corners of the globe.

Little did they dream that night what disappointment and almost blank despair was in store for them upon their awakening the next morning, by the perusal of the proceedings of council the night previous. They then for the first time learned that our heretofore regarded healthfulness and bracing mountain atmosphere have been alone owing to some special interposition of Providence, for we have now, and have had ever since we have put on city airs, the very essence—I might with propriety say, quintessence of disease, pestilence and woe in its very midst.

Hamlet—Do you see yonder cloud that's almost in shape of a camel?

Polonius—By the mass, and 'tis like a camel, indeed.

Hamlet—Methinks it is like a weasel.

Polonius—It is backed like a weasel.

Hamlet—Or like a whale?

Polonius—Very like a whale.

The only possible way to relieve ourselves of the terrible disaster which threatens to overwhelm us is to give a $100,000 contract to some one to do something. It does not matter much if it does not rest over the question what it is, so that we only expend the money and increase our taxes from 3 per cent to the neighborhood of 5 per cent. This will at once cause money enough to flock here and engage in various enterprises, where the great considerations which govern their choice of location are, "High taxes and small returns."

If it is absolutely essential to our property and happiness that a contract must be given to some one, and that our taxes must be increased, let us cast about and find some other less objectionable subject for expenditure of our surplus means, and one less deleterious to our healthfulness than the building of public sewers.

The absurdity of such an undertaking seems, to the writer, so apparent that it is difficult to treat it seriously.

When so called "professionals" persist in calling a vault twenty or thirty feet deep in a loose gravel bed, and walled up loosely with stone, a "cesspool" it does smack somewhat of a contract somewhere. "Professionals" ought to know enough to know that a cesspool is a "cavity sunk in the earth to receive and retain the settlement of water conveyed in it."—[Webster.] Now, no such thing as a "cesspool" could be made in the gravel bed underlying our town, unless such were made water tight. There are many such vaults or cesspools, if you please, now in use in our midst. Before condemning such and pronouncing them unhealthy without investigation, let council or our medical fraternity appoint a smelling committee and examine such as to effluvia, if any, arising from them, and if necessary, require disinfectants or deodorizing agents to be used as occasion requires.

Instead of the shallow surface soil boxes which many now use and which are seldom if deodorized, let all such be abolished and require vaults to be dug from 20 to 30 feet deep and deodorize if were necessary. This will bring about a far healthier state of affairs than any sewerage system, that has yet been invented could possibly do, and not subject our property holders to one tenth the expense of such system.

To gentlemen who so urgently advocate the adoption of a sewerage system for our town know anything about the subject they must know there is not a single place either in the United States or Europe where a sewerage system is adopted but it is considered of the greatest moment and upon which efforts of scientific minds have been directed for years, so to speak, but as a means to keep down a greater nuisance, in a sanitary point of view, than what is sought to be abolished. In large towns and cities they become necessary calls on account of their convenience, and in many cases preventing greater evils. In a town like ours, with its natural subsoil drainage, it does seem to be the height of folly, either as a matter of convenience or upon sanitary considerations, to enter upon the expenditure of such a large sum as the adoption of a sewerage system would entail upon our citizens.

In a sanitary point of view we would not be benefited one iota but be placed by it in a worse condition than before. All large cities and towns have naturally streams of water under which to extend the outlet sewer pipes, thus preventing from that source a suction or draft of deleterious gases up the sewer and into the various house connections. We have not such deep water in which to extend the outlet pipe, the mouth of which would necessarily be open and subject to almost constant suction or draft of effluvia in to house construction, thus making worse the evil we would remedy.

Apropos upon this subject I subjoin the following article taken from the Chicago Western Trade Journal of February 16th.

A SEWAGE SYSTEM

The emptying of all manner of filth into the water ways is a sufficiently false system of sewage, to demand a revolution, but if not the fact that economy demands some other system should awaken the people to a proper disposal of the sewage in such a way that it would not be allowed to pollute the water ways, destroy health and exhaust the fertility of the land. But this is slow in receiving attention. Several systems and trials have been made abroad, but the solution is still to be reached. A French sanitary commission recently appointed a committee of five capable men to make a full and complete trial of the earth system, which they say is the only one that has stood the test of time. The Germans have also been experimenting largely in this direction, and at an army hospital—St. Jacob's—they have constructed a cesspool into which is put a liquid disinfectant and deodorizer, which instantly destroys all smell as well as all danger of infection. The solid matter is precipitated in a sort of grayish powder, which is mixed with earth and used as a fertilizer, and the liquid is discharged into the river. If the disinfectant is really an effectual one this method seems to approach nearer to a solution of the question than any of its predecessors. The question of economy will have much to do with its adoption, however, but sooner or later the evil must be remedied.

The Germans, however, consider the matter of economy as entering very largely into the consideration of their public enterprises. This we wholly ignore in our public undertakings.

Looking upon such sordid considerations as beneath the aspirations of a free American citizen.

Modesty dictates that I still affix my sign manual.

OMAHA & DENVER SHORT LINE

Its Convenience to Colorado Business Men

Commencing Sunday, November 6, 1881, the Union Pacific company will run a fast Omaha express through between Denver and Omaha daily, over the recently constructed Julesburg cut-off.

Leaving Denver (breakfast)	8 00 a m
Arrive at Sterling (dinner)	1 25 p m
Arrive at North Platte	4 30 p m
Arrive at Omaha	7 00 a m
Arrive at Council Bluffs (breakfast)	8 00 a m
Arrive at Chicago (dinner time)	6 30 a m

—Time, Denver to Omaha, twenty three and one-half hours; time, Denver to Chicago, forty-six hours.

This new route is 180 miles shorter than any rival, six hours the quickest to Omaha, seven to Council Bluffs and the quickest to Chicago, St. Louis and all points east, and it runs the finest trains ever built—constructed by the Pullman company expressly for this line. They embody every feature of safety, convenience and luxury yet attained in railway equipment. It is the only through line possessing a water grade across the plains (averaging less than ten feet to the mile). It is the most picturesque route, has the best dining stations, the heaviest steel rails, best iron bridges and most careful ballasting.

Passengers from Leadville, Gunnison, San Juan and all points in southern Colorado make close connection in the Union depot, Denver, and arrive in Chicago and all eastern cities so as to insure a full day for business on the day of arrival, practically saving from twelve to twenty four hours, and avoiding all night changes.

Meantime the Kansas Pacific route, now Kansas division Union Pacific railway, to Kansas City and all points east and southeast, and the Pioneer Union Pacific route from Denver, via Cheyenne, to Omaha and the east and northeast, maintain their usual standard of excellence. Tickets via Cheyenne are good over the new route, or vice versa. 1-23-tf

Imperial Court Reminiscences

The Paris correspondent of a Philadelphia paper says: The empress was dressed for a time by Mme Vignon, but finding that each of her dresses was copied and reproduced some hundreds of times over she resolved to try a new artiste. Hence she went to Worth and was so pleased with his skill and taste that she specially contracted a bill of some $20,000. This bill when sent in was submitted to the emperor. Now Napoleon III, with all his generosity could do no mean thing nor even, so he drew his pen across the bill wrote a check for just half the amount and instructed his chamberlain to demand a receipt in full. Warned by this experience, Worth sent in bills among his leading ladies of the court, and found that though they were exceedingly ready to run up bills some of which had been standing for years, they were by no means ready to pay them. In fact a suit of combination was formed whose watchword was "No settlement with Worth." What was the unfortunate dressmaker to do. He could not very well sue these incredulous princesses and duchesses, some of whom were the wives of ministers, and so beyond the reach of law, while if he commenced legal proceedings against the rest he would infinitely lose the custom of the court and ruin himself in the process. Yet it was galling to him were by no means trifling. One lady's bill amounting to $16,000 another to $14,000, and there was scarcely one of the court belles that owed him less than $10,000. In this dilemma he hit upon an expedient worthy of a down east Yankee or a Philadelphia lawyer. One morning the newspapers of Paris announced that owing to his complicated affairs, Messrs Worth & Bobergh (there were two of them in those days) had disposed of their business to M X, of Vienna. M X, under this appearance, took charge of the establishment, and at once set himself to the task of collecting all outstanding bills, a matter which he achieved without much difficulty. This weighty financial operation once completed, a second paragraph appeared in the newspapers to the effect that the firm, Messrs with M X, of Vienna, having failed to reach a satisfactory conclusion, Messrs Worth & Bobergh would be forced to continue to carry on their business themselves. I do not think that M Worth ever found so much difficulty in collecting his bills again though that is a point of which a certain royal lady of rank, who was wont to run to him more than she could pay, could tell many a curious tale. As to the royal personages themselves, the talk excited by this affair was something from which one of this fortunate young present at least bill at the palace of the Elysee given under the presidency of Marshal de MacMahon, her invitation ticket having been procured in the same manner and for the same reasons as was the seat in the opera box for the head of the house. Verily it is not a bad thing to be a leading Parisian dressmaker.

One of Cupid's Freaks

Philadelphia Times

When the French sought to establish a monarchy in Mexico Maximilian found a regiment of boys and waged against such of the invaders as appeared in Sonora a warfare that told. The young man's father was of Christian blood and his mother was a Mexican. His name Corona, soon became famous, and at the age of twenty five he was regarded as the Mosby of Mexico. At the end of the war he was a major general the hero of the soldiers and the idol of Mazatlan society. He was six feet tall broad shouldered, handsome and daring. While attending a ball at the American hotel, in Mazatlan, he stumbled over a domestic, knocking a tray from her hand. Stooping to pick up the crockery, General Corona noticed that the girl was very pretty and very sweet. She told him that her name was Betty Bowman, that her mother was a San Francisco washerwoman and that he ought to know better than to rush so headlong down a dark stairway. Corona made love to the American miss and before leaving for the capital he had learned of her irreproachable though very humble life. Once away, Betty's face and pretty ways haunted him so much that he wrote to her, arranging for marriage by proxy. He remained in Mazatlan, the bride went to a convent school. They were a thousand miles apart and wrote to each other daily, the husband constantly instructing the wife in polite ways. President Juarez, fearing that Corona's popularity would lead the people to give their vote to the young soldier at an election then approaching, concluded to send him as minister to Madrid, the most enviable diplomatic position, in the eyes of all Mexicans. General Corona took the washerwoman's daughter to his palace in Madrid and she now is regarded as the most brilliant and accomplished lady at the court of Spain.

A Gigantic English Dictionary

London Times, January 27

At the Dictionary meeting of the Philological society last week Dr Murray gave an interesting resume of the work for the new dictionary, for the preparation of which the society had asked the co-operation of the English speaking world. Of the million additional quotations asked in May, 1879, 900,000 had actually been received from upwards of eight hundred volunteer readers in Great Britain, America and the colonies. The Royal, Linnean, Geological, Astronomical and other learned societies had lent their aid in the investigation of the different sciences, in order to contribute to the success of the work. All the important books of all ages that now have to be read, or were read, had been searched for the collection of illustrative quotations. About thirty competent scholars were at work as sub-editors, arranging and preparing the slips and drafting the articles. The delegates of the Clarendon Press in view of the importance of the work, had decided upon a large extension of its finish which will now much exceed the original plan. It is anticipated that a first instalment will be ready for publication early in the next year. Dr Murray then fell into the subject of the difficulties in the way of the full and thorough treatment of the English language, and threw upon the certain and clear English words.

A Defense of Opium

Philadelphia Times

Sir George Birdwood writes to the Times that it is not to sell more, the claim of the anti opium agitation. He denies the origin of this agitation to the commercial jealousy of the Dutch in the last century. To disprove the pernicious effect of opium cite he adduces the instance of the Rajpoots, who though "intensely saturated with opium" from their youth upward, are "some of the finest, most truthful and bravest people in the world." He further points out that opium in the East is a valuable febrifuge, that it probably exists to counteract the evil consequences of the peculiar diet of the Orientals, and that it checks self eating for alcoholic stimulants. Moreover, the opium of India contains infinitely less morphia than the Turkish opium known to us in England, and finally, he shows that when smoked as "chandoo" which is the Chinese form for using the drug—none of the active principles of opium are inhaled in the smoke which, so far as it has any specific effect at all, appears to be a valuable remedy and preventive in cases of bronchial and thoracic disorder.

A public exhibition is now in course of preparation by the scholars of the public schools, under the direction of Prof Harris It has not as yet been fully determined when or where it will be held, although the opera house will probably be secured for the occasion

Mr E S Alexander spent Sunday and Monday with his family in this city, and returned to Topeka yesterday He seems much pleased over the satisfactory manner in which the Las Vegas water works have turned out. The formal celebration of their completion will not be held for some time yet.

At the dance in Court House hall on Monday night a five dollar album was offered as a prize to the lady and gentleman doing the finest waltzing It appears that there was some dissatisfaction in reference to the disposal of it, and another waltzing match will be held for a prize of $30

Doctors Anderson, Hart and Reed held an autopsy on the body of Abraham Stevenson the colored barber who died so suddenly on Sunday night while on his way to the depot. They decided that he came to his death from natural causes, cavities being found in both lungs, and the violent coughing causing them rupture of the lungs He was buried yesterday afternoon

Many of the citizens of Colorado Springs seem to approve the adoption of the electric alarm system proposed by the Colorado Telephone company. A proposition has been made by this company to provide the city with a thorough system, the cost of which will only be $30 a month, and it is thought that the council will take some action on the matter at its next meeting

Ed Kent, who formerly worked in the railroad offices and who afterwards was one of the partners in the cigar store and billiard room on Pike's Peak avenue, has got himself into trouble by borrowing money too freely from his friends A few days ago a warrant was issued for his arrest, charging him with obtaining money under false pretenses, but he evidently apprehended trouble, for he has not since been seen in the city

Mr J Henry Thedinga and Miss Lizzie A Lawton were married at the residence of the bride's father, Mr Clark Lawton, on Monday evening, by the Rev. G T LeBoutillier The ceremony was performed in the presence of about forty of the friends of the contracting parties At the conclusion of the supper which followed the marriage the guests in a body visited the new home which Mr. Thedinga had provided for the bride, in close proximity to her father's house. Here were displayed a large number of useful and handsome presents, which had been presented by the relatives and friends of the bride and groom.

Elsewhere will be found the notice of the death of Captain Elisha Morgan, Jr He had been a resident of this city for a year and a half, and his death, though not unexpected, will cause genuine sorrow His life had been an active one, beginning with his entering the army at the age of eighteen The obituary notice gives the history of his career He had a frank, generous nature, which made him friends wherever he was He bore his sufferings patiently and calmly faced the death which had no sting for him His funeral will take place from his late residence on Pike's Peak avenue at 10 10 this morning The services will be brief as his remains will be taken east for interment on the morning train The friends of the deceased are invited to attend

To night comes the masquerade ball under the auspices of Company A, First Battalion Cavalry. All of the balls and receptions given by this company in the past have been very enjoyable affairs, and the utmost efforts have been put forth by the committees having this masquerade in charge to make it come up to if not surpass any heretofore held in Colorado Springs From what we can learn many handsome costumes have been prepared purposely for the occasion Admittance will be by invitation and a committee has been appointed to guard against the admittance of any disreputable characters to the hall

The card of Mr. L A McMorris, who has opened a land office over the People's bank, will be found in another column

DIED

Died in Colorado Springs Colorado February 21, 1882, Capt Elisha Morgan Jr

The deceased was the son of Dr Elisha and Catharine Gail Morgan He was born at Lawrenceburg Indiana November 9 1843 After careful preparation at Williston Seminary East Hampton Massachusetts he entered the class of 64 of Bell it College Incommon with that of many others his course of study was interrupted by the war He enlisted in 1862 in the 22d Illinois (Board of Trade) regiment as a private On the capture of Vicksburg he was promoted from the ranks to the position of captain Subsequently and just before the close of the war he served on the staff of Major General Lane After the war he engaged in cotton growing and his malarial fever drove him northward to Chicago Just before the great fire he was in the employ of Potwin & Morgan Soon after that event he entered the house of Frank Strong & Co, and when that firm was merged into the Chicago Stamping Company he was chosen vice president which office he held until his last illness Early last spring pulmonary disease became evident and he came to Colorado Springs in October 1880 His devoted family joined him some months later

His social disposition gained for him many friends who mourn his loss Some months since he became convinced that he had not long to live he began to think more earnestly of eternal things With all the earnestness of his enthusiastic nature he sought preparation for the change of worlds Apprehending by faith the precious Saviour, his perfect faith in forgiveness of his past life was firm and his purpose for the future strong and his anxiety for the welfare of former companions intense By prayer and tears he sought as long as he could wield the pen, to win them to the Saviour he held so dear and to the last hour he commended them to God in prayer

The joyful anticipation of the glory and the presence of the Father's house during the past few days of his life held an intense longing to depart and to be with Christ To-day, in triumph over all his foes he has fled to a better land
